

To whom it may concern;I do not agree that my satellite provider should be limited in providing me services pertaining to my local area of travel. I depend on the system for news and entertainment as I travel in my work and do not understand what rational reason could be given to limit what they can provide me. I do understand that someone may want to limit the competition, but that would not be a rational reason if you permit the competition. I guess I am a firm believer in letting the best man win and let the public decide. If you deny that access you are then excluding the competition.
Steve Taylor